Session A
Access to Care: Addressing Suicide Risk and Meeting the Behavioral Health Care Needs of Veterans

Introductory: 2.0 CE
*Meets Veteran Licensure Requirement

Veterans are at greater risk for suicide, Posttraumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), depression and substance abuse compared with the general population (e.g., Schell and Marshall 2008; Turk, et al., 2002; VA Office of Suicide Prevention, 2016). The Veterans Health Administration (VHA) has expanded its system of care to address the needs of Veterans with mental health and substance abuse disorders. This session will begin by providing information about how Veterans can access care through the VHA. Additionally, efforts aimed at prevention of suicide will be provided. Presenters will explain evidence based practices, used by the VHA, in the treatment of substance abuse and trauma-related disorders. Lastly, psychosocial rehabilitation for Veterans with severe mental illness will be explained.

Learning Objectives:
- Describe the process by which Veterans can access mental health care through the VHA
- Outline the VHA’s efforts to prevent suicide among Veterans
- List and discuss two evidence based practices used by the VHA to treat Veterans
- Describe Psychosocial Rehabilitation in the treatment of Veterans.

Our Presenters:

Amanda Adams-Mock, Psy.D. serves as a clinical psychologist on both the Behavioral Health Interdisciplinary Program (BHIP) and the Psychosocial Rehabilitation and Recovery Center (PRRC) Teams at the Huntington VA Medical Center. Dr. Adams-Mock has many years of experience in the community mental health system where she was involved in program development, clinical services and administration. Her clinical interests include interpersonal violence, disability, program development, and severe mental illness.

Rebecca Denning, Psy.D. is the Lead Psychologist and Director of Training at Valley Health Systems in Huntington, WV where she has spearheaded the development of the internship training program and assisted with expansion of service lines within the Behavioral Medicine department. Her clinical practice and teaching is primarily in children, adolescents, and family in an outpatient clinic and in an integrated primary care clinic. Rebecca earned her doctorate through Marshall University and completed her internship at Nationwide Children’s Hospital in the Child Clinical track.

Scott A. Fields, Ph.D. is a licensed clinical psychologist and Director of Behavioral Science in the West Virginia University – Charleston Division. He earned his PhD from Ohio University after completing an American Psychological Association approved internship at CAMC/West Virginia University School of Medicine – Charleston Division. He is a Past-President of WVPA.

Jason Flick, Psy.D. served as an enlisted-man in the U.S. Navy, and was deployed to the Persian Gulf three times aboard the USS Halyburton (FFG-40). Upon discharge, he attended Indiana University of Pennsylvania where he double-majored in psychology and journalism. He then attended Western Carolina University where he earned his Master of Arts in Clinical Psychology, followed by Antioch University New England in Keene, NH where he earned his PsyD. Dr. Flick has studied and worked in 7 VA hospital systems including Pittsburgh VAMC, John Dingell VAMC in Detroit, and the National Center for PTSD in Boston. He is currently working as a member of the Substance Use Disorder Team at Huntington VAMC.

Alexandra Sophie Kadner, Ph.D. is a scientist and medical writer with 20 years of academic research experience, and 8 years of professional experience as a medical writer. She owns and operates Alexandra Kadner Medical Writing LLC, and develops materials for medical education, peer reviewed manuscripts, book chapters, white papers, and other medical forms of medical communications. Dr. Kadner is also a trans woman, and a member of the board of Fairness West Virginia.

Dr. Pennington has served as the Chief of Psychology at the Huntington VAMC since 2009, and previously served as the Trauma Recovery Program Coordinator and Local Evidence Based Psychotherapy Coordinator. She earned her Master’s degree from Marshall University and her Psy.D. from Argosy University/Georgia University School of Professional Psychology. Clinical interests include trauma, moral injury, addiction and threat management.

Billy Rutherford, Psy.D.  Dr. Billy Rutherford, Psy.D. serves as a clinical psychologist in the trauma recovery program (TRP) at the Huntington VA medical center. His clinical interests include evidence-based therapies for trauma-related disorders and couples. He also serves as a clinical supervisor for pre-doctoral interns completing rotations in PTSD treatment. Dr. Rutherford earned a Psy.D. from Marshall University.

Emily Selby-Nelson, Psy.D.  Dr. Selby-Nelson is a licensed clinical psychologist working for Cabin Creek Health Systems (CCHS), where she serves as the Director of Behavioral Health and provides fully integrated behavioral health services to rural and underserved communities in a primary care setting. She is clinical assistant faculty at WVU – School of Medicine (Charleston Div.) and Marshall University, Chair of the APA’s Committee on Rural Health, and WVPA ECP Chair.

Sarah Setran, Psy.D.  Dr. Setran earned her Psy.D. in 2013 from Marshall University. Her clinical roles include in the Behavioral Health and Addiction Medicine Neonatal Transition Unit at Cabell Huntington Hospital, and as a staff psychologist at Cabin Creek Health Systems. She actively treats substance use disorders, including in the Medication Assisted Therapy programs. She also supervises students and provides outreach and training in her workplace.

Session B
A History of the Pharma-DSM Connection: The Ads, the Fads and the Lads of Mad

Joe Wyatt, Ph.D.

Introductory: 1.5 CE

While several mental health syndromes are known to have their bases in human biology, it is not the case that most cases of common disorders such as depression and anxiety can be traced to physiological origins. Yet, there is a common perception among both the populace and many professionals that the reverse is the case. One may ask how such a widespread misperception occurred. This presentation will trace that history and will offer attendees a number of suggestions for gentle disabusement of such thinking by clients. Such client education may well be necessary in order to achievement optimal therapeutic effects.

Learning Objectives
• Critique the advertising practices of the pharmaceutical industry.
• Explain how the pharmaceutical industry and organized psychiatry have promoted the biological causation explanation of behavioral disorders in terms that go well beyond the available research.
• Assess the degree to which big pharma intruded upon the development of the DSM-V.
• List specific techniques for aiding the clients to understand that his or her fate does not necessarily lie in their biology.
Session C
Rural Ethics: Translating the Ethics Code for Rural practice

Emily Selby-Nelson, Psy.D.

Intermediate: 1.5 CE ETHICS

The American Psychological Association’s Committee on Ethics has announced their recently launched mission to revise, restructure, and rewrite the APA Ethical Principles of Psychologists and Code of Conduct, also known as the Ethics Code. The APA Committee on Rural Health recently outlined the ethical implications of rural psychology and practice, while advocating for those concepts to be integrated in the domains of education, training, and application in the Ethics Code. In the wake of our field’s attempts to evolve the utility and application of the Ethics Code, it is important for West Virginia psychologists to be competent advocates of the distinct ethical challenges of rural practice to improve the quality of services provided to our clients and patients. Such expertise may consequently promote access to quality services in remote areas by equipping rural psychologists with the ethical knowledge needed to successfully resolve complicated ethical situations that have the potential to contribute to provider burnout and risks to consumers of psychological services. Although the Ethics Code provides general guidance and recommendations for ethical practice, much is left unexplained and insufficient when the Ethics Code is applied in rural practice settings. Flexibility, creativity, professional resilience, and consultation are key elements to ethical practice in rural and underserved communities. This session will outline the unique ethical challenges facing rural practitioners providing psychological services to underserved populations. Best practice recommendations for ethical resolution in rural practice will be provided to assist practitioners who may find themselves in similarly complicated ethical pitfalls. It is recommended that attendees be somewhat familiar with the current APA Ethics Code prior to this session.

Learning Objectives
• Describe some of the ethical implications of rural practice
• List best practices for effectively resolving ethical issues in rural clinical settings
• Apply skills to manage the potential discomfort and challenges inherent in ethical situations in rural practice

Session D

13th Annual Psych Bowl

Scott Fields, Ph.D.

Introductory: 1.5 CE

The 13th annual Psych Bowl provides an opportunity for psychologists and psychologists in training to both test and expand their knowledge of the principles that underpin clinical practice. Set up in the style of "Jeopardy," participants will field questions about diagnosis, ethics, systems and theories, pop culture and ethics as they apply to clinical psychology. Further, participants will have to brush up on their memories in terms of landmark psychological studies that continue to influence practice today such as the work of Bandura, Milgram, and others. Contestants and the audience participate, answer questions, are provided references, and generally get to fellowship as they learn more about their chosen profession. The Psych Bowl is a tradition 13 years running because it combines learning, strategy and good old fashioned competition in an evidence-based, fact-filled hour and a half presentation.

Learning Objectives:

• List the names and important findings of several influential historical figures in clinical psychology.
• Discuss the tenets of various evidence based clinical practices such as cognitive behavioral therapy, dialectical behavioral therapy, and interpersonal therapy.
• Describe historical and contemporary clinical and social psychology findings that shape mental health treatment today.
Session E

Substance Abuse: What are "THEY" Thinking?

Sarah Setran, Psy.D.

Introductory Level: 1.5 CE

The presentation will introduce the concept of substance use disorder as a chronic disease. We will review the criteria necessary for a disease to be considered chronic and review how substance use disorders compare to other chronic diseases. We will also discuss the concept of staging substance abuse for treatment and prognosis. We will briefly review some of the most popular treatments for opioid use disorder and the changes in state payment structure, waiver 1115.

Learning Objectives:

- List the criteria for the classification of a chronic disease.
- Compare how substance use disorders compare to other chronic diseases
- List the criteria used for staging in other chronic diseases and assess the utility of staging for prognosis and treatment of substance use disorder
- List some of the most commonly used treatments used for opioid use disorder and the evidence for those treatments
- Discuss the feasibility and sustainability of offering substance use disorder treatment with the current payment structure and the how WV State Waiver 1115 will affect reimbursement

CE Credits

WVPA is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. Please allow time to sign-in for CE before class is scheduled to begin. You must return a FULLY COMPLETED evaluation form to receive your CE Certificate.

The West Virginia Psychological Association (WVPA) is approved by the American Psychological Association to sponsor continuing education for psychologists. WVPA maintains responsibility for this program and its contents.

Registration

- Registration is payable in full PRIOR to the 2017 Fall Conference to avoid additional $50 on-site or late registration fees.
- The workshops begin promptly at their assigned times throughout the day.
- Registrations can be made online or by mail; payment must accompany all registrations.
Cancellation Policy
Please pre-register before Sept. 30, 2017. In the event of a cancellation prior to 72 hours before the event (by noon), all fees paid shall be refunded except for a $25 per person processing charge. Cancellations less than 72 hours before (by noon) shall be subject to an additional processing charge of 50% of the published selected fee of the event registration to cover costs incurred in sponsoring the program.

Grievance Procedures
The West Virginia Psychological Association (WVPA) is fully committed to conducting all activities in strict conformance with the American Psychological Association’s Ethical Principles of Psychologists.

When a participant, either orally or in written format, files a grievance and expects action on the complaint, the following actions will be taken.
1. If the grievance concerns a speaker, the content presented by the speaker, or the style of presentation, the individual filing the grievance will be asked to put his/her comments in written format. The CE Chair will then pass on the comments to the speaker, assuring the confidentiality of the grieved individual.
2. If the grievance concerns a workshop offering, its content, level of presentation, or the facilities in which the workshop was offered, the convention chair will mediate and will be the final arbitrator. If the participant requests action, the convention chair will:
   a. attempt to move the participant to another workshop or
   b. provide a credit for a subsequent year’s workshop or
   c. provide a partial or full refund of the workshop fee.
   Actions 2b and 2c will require a written note, documenting the grievance, for record keeping purposes. The note need not be signed by the grieved individual.
3. If the grievance concerns a WVPA CE program, in a specific regard, the CE Chair will attempt to arbitrate.

Please contact WVPA Interim Executive Director Jocelyn Burum, Psy.D. at info@wvpsychology.org to submit a complaint, or if you have additional questions.

Session F
Doctoral Psychology Internship Boot Camp

Emily Selby-Nelson, PsyD and Rebecca Denning, Psy.D.
Introductory: 3.0 CE

As graduate students prepare for the pinnacle of their clinical training, the application and interview process can lead to confusion, intimidation, and stress for some applicants. This session will provide the information and guidance necessary to assist participants in resolving these concerns, concentrate on finding the best fit for their internship year, and allow them to focus on the excitement and pride that should be experienced during this important step in their professional development! Although this session is geared toward graduate students preparing to apply for internship in the near future, it would also be helpful to students earlier in their training as well as faculty or clinical supervisors looking to learn new ways to support their students and trainees applying for internship. The presenters will provide an overview of the internship application process, explain “match” details, and provide tips for successful application and interviewing skills. Recommendations for the preparation of competitive application materials and effective interviewing strategies will be provided. Additional guidance on self-care and balancing application demands with existing educational and personal life responsibilities will be presented. Attendees will have the opportunity to engage in an interactive and personalized Q&A session with the presenters to address any questions or concerns regarding the internship application or interviewing process. This session is designed to prepare attendees to effectively and successfully complete the APPIC experience with skill and confidence.

Learning Objectives

- Describe the requirements and details of the APPIC application process
- Discuss best practices in applying for doctoral psychology internship programs
- Apply skills including: effective application preparation/planning; competitive essay, CV, and cover letter writing; and successful interviewing strategies.
- Implement self-care and stress management skills to promote effectiveness and wellbeing throughout the APPIC process
Actual and perceived stigmatization in healthcare settings is a major barrier to healthcare utilization for LGBT people. One contributing factor is the lack of education among providers, who frequently do not know how to frame a conversation with patients or clients about sexual orientation and sexual identity, and are unaware of the specific risks and challenges LGBT patients face. This presentation will give an overview of the challenges facing the LGBT population of accessing competent care and will provide recommendations for the assessment and treatment of population-specific issues including trauma/safety, substance abuse, the coming out process, and the gender transition process. We will outline the broader consultative/collaborative role of psychologists working with primary care physicians, reproductive endocrinologists, surgical centers, schools, and employers and potential ethical pitfalls will be described. There will also be an opportunity for questions and discussion regarding the unique features of addressing the needs of LGBT clients in a competent and affirming environment.

Learning Objectives

• Describe the history of pathologizing the LGBT population, and explain how this history contributes to underutilization of healthcare by LGBT people.
• Enumerate the specific stressors and risk factors affecting the LGBT population.
• Describe the obstacles to psychological care and the assessment needs specific to the LGBT community as well as strategies for improving their own clinical environment and interview style to provide more affirming and competent care.
• Outline potential unique treatment needs of their LGBT clients as well as methods for collaborating with external providers and advocating for their clients in their school or workplace.

Session H
Ethical Issues in Child Abuse Cases: Competency, Collaboration, and Communication with the Court

Sandra Walls, M.S. & Jennifer Mills-Price, Psy.D.

Introductory: 3.0 CE Ethics

This presentation will focus on child abuse and neglect issues in both a legal and clinical context. The legal portion of the presentation will address relevant statutes and case law related to abuse/neglect including mandatory reporting laws. Various types of abuse/neglect will also be discussed including warning signs of child maltreatment. Participants will be educated about the process by which abuse/neglect cases work their way through the system and the role psychologists, law enforcement, CPS, and other professionals play in these cases. The clinical portion of the presentation will focus on the scope of child maltreatment, the impact and outcomes associated with maltreatment, and the relationship between mental health and parenting. Evidenced based treatments for maltreated children and maltreating parents will be discussed with an emphasis on the necessity of a collaborative approach. Ethical issues, both forensic and clinical, that arise in abuse/neglect cases will be interwoven with other subjects throughout the presentation.

Learning Objectives

- Describe West Virginia mandatory reporting requirements including the agencies where a report must be made, required time frames for reporting, and what requires a report to law enforcement.
- Articulate how West Virginia statute defines abuse and neglect and identify the various types of abuse and warning signs for each. Attendees will also be able to articulate characteristics distinguishing low vs. high suspicion injuries and apply that knowledge when assessing whether or not a situation requires a mandatory report.
- Explain the scope of child maltreatment in the United States, outcomes of child maltreatment supported by longitudinal research, and developmental pathways of child maltreatment to outcomes identified in the literature.
- List several evidence-based practices used to treat children who have experienced maltreatment and maltreating parents and will be able to locate resources for gaining competency in those practices.
- Attendees will apply the APA Ethics Code to a series of hypothetical dilemmas that may arise when working with maltreated children and their families.
Using the workshop descriptions as your guide, please indicate, by marking the box, the sessions you wish to attend. An accurate count of those attending conference functions is needed to ensure adequate handout materials and classroom comfort.
